AD25 Honors Trailblazers During Women's History Month

March was formally proclaimed California's Women's History Month and Asm. Ash Kalra was honored to attend the 3rd Annual Women's Heritage Day, which highlighted the exemplary leadership of women in our community. It was a day full of festivities at History Park in San José, where people enjoyed traditional and modern performances, and visited local food and art vendors. Asm. Kalra joined many local community members and elected officials in attendance.

"I want to thank History San José,

Mosaic America, La Raza Historical Society of Santa Clara Valley, and other community partners for empowering diverse voices and preserving the history of women's leadership," Asm. Kalra shared.

Additionally, Asm. Kalra recognized Dr. Cynthia Teniente-Matson, President of San José State University, as his Assembly District 25's Woman of the Year Honoree. The State Assembly hosted Dr. Teniente-Matson at a welcoming reception in the State Capitol at the beginning of March.

Amid the significant changes and attacks from the federal administration on women's rights across the country, Asm. Kalra is committed to working with his colleagues in the State Capitol to protect the dignity and rights of all Californians, especially members of the targeted communities, during this challenging time.

A Message From Assemblymember Ash Kalra

Dear Friends,

Welcome to the first quarterly newsletter of this exciting legislative session! It remains my greatest honor to represent California's 25th Assembly District and to continue advocating for meaningful initiatives that uplift and support our vibrant community.

I'm thrilled to share with you a few of the twenty bills I have introduced this session, aimed to improve the quality of life for all Californians:

- AB 1157 — Affordable Rent Act With many families facing unprecedented rent hikes, I introduced AB 1157, the Affordable Rent Act, to provide meaningful relief and stability. This bill lowers the state's rent increase cap, extends essential protections to renters in single-family homes, and ensures these safeguards remain permanent. California's housing affordability crisis demands decisive action, and this legislation helps protect families from displacement and reduces the risk of homelessness.
- AB 251 — Justice for Elder Abuse Victims Our elders deserve dignity and safety. AB 251 ensures elderly and dependent adults who suffer from abuse or neglect in nursing homes have increased access to justice. This bill also holds facilities accountable, discouraging them from destroying or concealing crucial evidence during investigations.
- AB 326 — CSU Audits Accountability and transparency in education are fundamental. AB 326 requires external audits of each California State University campus every three years, with results publicly accessible, strengthening oversight and accountability within our CSU system.
- AB 347 — CLASS Act Promoting compassion in education, the CLASS Act empowers students by informing them of their right to opt out of animal dissections in science classes. It ensures students receive alternative assignments, respecting their ethical choices without compromising their educational experience.

As we enter April, I reflect deeply on the 50th Anniversary of Black April Day, a solemn occasion marking the forced migration of millions of Vietnamese who sought freedom and dignity here in the United States and beyond. It is truly a privilege to represent the largest Vietnamese community in the United States, a community whose resilience and strength have profoundly shaped our district. Your contributions continue to enrich our shared heritage and democracy, inspiring us all.

I look forward to seeing you soon at community gatherings throughout Assembly District 25. Please know my office is always open to you—don't hesitate to reach out!

Thank you for your continued trust and support.

Warm regards,

Ash Kalra

AD 25 Celebrates Women's History Month in Downtown San José

On March 27th, Asm. Ash Kalra hosted Assembly District 25's 2025 Women's History Month Celebration at SP2 Communal Bar & Restaurant in downtown San José. The annual event brought community members together to recognize five exceptional women and organizations whose leadership continues to shape the region.

In his opening remarks, Asm. Kalra highlighted the significance of the moment: "This is a time to honor the stories, struggles, and accomplishments of women past and present—and to uplift the women leading us into the future." He emphasized the diversity and strength of the honorees, noting their shared commitment to justice, equity, and community empowerment.

The Leadership in Community award was presented to Kathy Sutherland, a longtime Delmas Park resident and neighborhood advocate. Kathy has played a central role in shaping local engagement efforts—from founding the Delmas Park Neighborhood Association to co-creating the Diridon Area Neighborhood Group. Her service on the Santa Clara Valley Open Space Authority, the Water District's Independent Monitoring Committee, and the Airports Commission reflects her deep dedication to sustainability and civic life.

Chris Patterson-Simmons received the Leadership in Business award for her years of entrepreneurial leadership and advocacy. As the owner of Neu2U Thrift Boutique and founder of CP Simmons Designs, Chris brings creativity and heart to the downtown small business community. She is also the first African American woman to chair East Village San José and served on several city and regional economic recovery, and transit groups.

The Leadership in Education award went to AAUW San José, one of the oldest and most active branches of the American Association of University Women. With over 200 members and four Community Action Projects, the organization raised more than $150,000 in scholarship funds in 2024 alone—supporting 19 local women in completing their college degrees. Under the leadership of President Tynka Dees, AAUW San José continues to create opportunities for women and girls at every stage of life.

This year's Susan Hammer Legacy Award was awarded to Dolores Alvarado, CEO of Community Health Partnership. With a public health career spanning nearly five decades, Dolores has led efforts in perinatal care, health equity, and immigrant and farmworker advocacy. Her work is grounded in lived experience and an unwavering commitment to human rights and dignity.

Dr. Cynthia Teniente-Matson, President of San José State University, was named the 2025 Woman of the Year. A nationally recognized leader in higher education, Dr. Teniente-Matson has championed student success, institutional equity, and innovation throughout her career. Since joining SJSU in 2023, she has helped position the university as a vital engine of opportunity in Silicon Valley.

The evening closed with gratitude to the honorees and to SP2 for hosting. Each of the awardees was recognized not only for their leadership but for the lasting impact they continue to make across San José and beyond.

Assembly District 25 Celebrates the Return of Tết Parade & More

Asm. Ash Kalra always feels honored to represent one of the most vibrant and diverse districts in California, which boasts a significant Asian American and Pacific Islander (AAPI) community. As the City of San José is home to one of the largest Vietnamese diasporas in the United States, it's no surprise that our constituents get to observe the beauty and cultural significance of the Lunar New Year, also known as Tết or Xuân, the Vietnamese version of the celebration. Tết marks the beginning of the lunar calendar year and is the most important traditional holiday in Vietnam. It is a time for families and community members to reunite, remember their ancestors, and celebrate a fresh start with joy, hope, gratitude, and possibilities.

Asm. Kalra has been a strong supporter and participant in the celebrations over the years. Whether it's participating in the Tết parade, joining community leaders for special ceremonies, or enjoying the many cultural festivals, Asm. Kalra is committed to recognizing the significance of this meaningful season for the Vietnamese community.

This year, Asm. Kalra is delighted to attend nearly every major Tết celebration in our district, which is full of festivities, lion dances, cultural performances, delicious foods, and the giving of lucky red envelopes as a symbol of good luck and prosperity for the new year. In January, Kalra joined his colleagues in Sacramento—Asm.s Patrick Ahrens, Alex Lee, and Senator Aisha Wahab—in co-hosting a Bay Area Lunar New Year Luncheon, where state legislators discussed priorities and initiatives related to AAPI empowerment in civic engagement with community leaders and elected officials at the county and city levels. He also participated in the Tết parade and the annual festival jointly hosted by the Vietnamese American Roundtable and the NorCal Union of Vietnamese Student Associations, which showed a beautiful display of Vietnamese culture and tradition. Kalra especially acknowledges the hard work of both organizations in bringing the Tết parade back to our district after more than 15 years.

In February, Kalra was invited to the delightful annual Vietnamese New Year Celebration hosted by the Vietnamese Catholic Community of the Diocese of San José at the San José History Park. He also celebrated with our community, the 10th anniversary of USTAR Productions' Tết Festival at the Eastridge Center and recognized Ms. Jody Ngo's leadership in continuing to host one of the largest Tết Festivals in the Bay Area in our district.

A proud member of the AAPI community and the first Asian American to be appointed Chair of the Assembly Judiciary Committee, Kalra emphasized that Tết and Lunar New Year are festive seasons for everyone to learn more about the diverse cultures that make up the heritage and strength of our nation. "The Tết celebration is a reminder of the strength and resilience of the Vietnamese American and AAPI community," Kalra said. "It's an opportunity to celebrate family, culture, and the shared values that bind us together."

Asm. Ash Kalra Hosts Black History Month Honoree Celebration

In a night filled with reflection, celebration, and recognition, Asm. Ash Kalra hosted the Black History Month Honoree Celebration at First AME Zion Church, bringing together community members to honor the legacy and contributions of Black leaders in Assembly District 25 and beyond. The event served as a powerful reminder of the resilience, impact, and continued excellence of the Black community.

Opening the evening, Asm. Kalra expressed deep gratitude to First AME Zion Church for providing a space to gather in unity and celebrate Black history. He spoke about the importance of recognizing Black excellence not just in February, but every day, as the contributions of Black leaders have shaped the community in countless ways.

The celebration also paid tribute to the late Jeff Moore, a tireless advocate for justice and equality whose leadership continues to inspire the community. As the former President of the San José NAACP and co-founder of the Black Leadership Kitchen Cabinet, Moore dedicated his life to fighting for racial justice and ensuring that Black voices were heard in local policy and governance. Kalra reflected on Moore's profound influence, not only in activism but also as a mentor and friend. "His leadership shaped everything from the water we drink to the criminal justice system," Kalra said. "His legacy reminds us that we must continue the fight for justice with compassion and unity."

Following the tribute, the evening shifted to recognizing individuals who have made extraordinary contributions to their fields and to the broader community. Regina Williams was honored for her leadership in affordable housing and community development. With more than 17 years of experience, she has been a driving force behind efforts to create stable housing solutions for families across Silicon Valley. Through her work at SV@Home and service on multiple boards, Williams has helped shape housing policies and programs that have changed lives. Her recognition as one of San José Spotlight's 15 most influential Black leaders underscores the impact of her work.

The celebration continued with the recognition of Dr. Melissa C. Brown, an Assistant Professor at Santa Clara University and a passionate advocate for Black women and girls in education. Her research on the impact of technology on marginalized communities has created important discussions around representation and access. Through her platform Blackfeminisms.com, she has amplified voices that are too often overlooked, creating a space for Black feminist discourse and challenging dominant narratives. Kalra praised her work, noting that her dedication to education and advocacy is transforming opportunities for future generations.

The evening also recognized the 100 Black Men of Silicon Valley, a group that has devoted decades to mentoring, educating, and empowering Black youth. Their motto, "What they see is what they'll be," reflects their commitment to ensuring young Black men have strong role models and access to opportunities that will help them thrive. Through STEM initiatives, entrepreneurship workshops, and health advocacy, the organization has played a critical role in uplifting Black families across the region. Their recognition at the event served as a testament to the power of mentorship and collective action.

Closing out the evening was the presentation of the Legacy Award to Robert Stroughter, a visionary entrepreneur and community leader whose work has left a lasting impact on Santa Clara Valley. From founding the first Black Student Union to advocating for transportation equity, Stroughter has dedicated his life to ensuring greater opportunities for Black youth and families. His organizations, Parents' Choice, Inc., (continued) and Joyner/Payne Youth Services Agency, have provided essential services for decades, helping families navigate challenges and secure brighter futures. Kalra highlighted Stroughter's lifelong commitment to advocacy, calling his contributions "a legacy of opportunity, justice, and empowerment that will endure for generations to come."

As the evening came to a close, Asm. Kalra reflected on the importance of continuing the fight for equity and justice, urging the community to draw inspiration from the honorees. "Our honorees remind us that progress is built through dedication, activism, and unwavering commitment," he said. "Let us take their stories to heart and continue building a future rooted in justice, equity, and opportunity for all."

With heartfelt congratulations to the honorees and a renewed commitment to celebrating Black excellence, the event concluded as a powerful testament to the ongoing contributions of Black leaders in Silicon Valley.

AACSA's 45th Annual MLK Luncheon Honors Local Leaders

Silicon Valley came together once again to honor the enduring legacy of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. at the 45th Annual MLK Luncheon, hosted by the African American Community Service Agency (AACSA). The event brought together community leaders, advocates, and elected officials to recognize those who embody Dr. King's vision of justice, service, and empowerment.

Asm. Ash Kalra was in attendance, taking a moment to reflect on the responsibility of institutions and leaders in shaping a more just society. He recalled the fearless advocacy of Jeff Moore, a leader who never hesitated to hold major organizations accountable for their role in affecting marginalized communities. In Moore's spirit, Kalra spoke truth to power, urging those in positions of influence to embrace their duty in advancing equity and justice.

The luncheon honored individuals whose dedication and service have made a lasting impact on the region. Senator Dave Cortese received the Drum Major Award, recognizing his leadership in driving meaningful change. The Gene Young Award was presented to BeAfro, an organization that uplifts the Black community through grassroots advocacy and empowerment.

The Facing the Challenge Award went to Lennies M. Gutiérrez, Director of Government Affairs for Comcast, for her commitment to fostering programs that strengthen community resources. Pastor Sean and Lorriane Gardner of Bible Way Christian Center were honored with the Spirit of Service Award, celebrating their outstanding pastoral leadership and dedication to their ministry.

Two Lifetime Achievement Awards were presented, recognizing decades of service and advocacy. Ocie and Mattie Tinsley, founders of the African American Heritage House, were honored for their work preserving and sharing Black history in San José. Valerie Coleman Morris, a journalist and storyteller, was recognized for her groundbreaking contributions to media and community empowerment.

The Champion for Change Award was presented to Ruth Silver-Taube, a legal advocate dedicated to workers' rights and social justice. Her work has been instrumental in fighting for the dignity and fair treatment of workers across Silicon Valley.

As the luncheon came to a close, the message was clear: the work of Dr. King continues through the tireless efforts of community leaders and advocates. Asm. Kalra emphasized that honoring Dr. King's legacy requires action every day, not just in moments of celebration. With a renewed commitment to justice and equity, attendees left inspired to continue the fight for a better, more inclusive future.

Asm. Ash Kalra Recognizes Distinguished Alumni at SJSU

San José State University recently celebrated its esteemed alumni at the Spartans of Significance: Distinguished Alumni Awards, an evening dedicated to recognizing the achievements of those who have made a profound impact in their fields and uplifted the Spartan community.

Asm. Ash Kalra had the honor of presenting each awardee with a Certificate of Recognition from the California State Assembly, commending their dedication to excellence, leadership, and service. Among those honored were Judge Robert R. Rigsby, Edward Oates, Dave and Bette Loomis, Speaker of the California State Assembly Robert Rivas, and Janine Pelosi, each of whom has left an indelible mark on their respective industries and communities.

Judge Robert R. Rigsby, recipient of the Tower Award, was celebrated for his trailblazing legal career, including his role as the first military judge to deploy full-time to an active war zone. His contributions to justice and public service were further recognized by the establishment of the Judge Robert Ray Rigsby Law and Social Justice Scholarship at SJSU.

The Lifetime Achievement Award was presented to Edward Oates, co-founder of Oracle Corporation, for his pioneering contributions to technology and ongoing philanthropic efforts supporting public science education and nonprofit initiatives. His influence continues to shape both the business and cultural landscapes.

Dave and Bette Loomis received the Spirit of '68 Award for their unwavering commitment to social justice and community support through their contributions to the Record Clearance Project at SJSU. Their efforts have helped individuals overcome legal barriers and reclaim opportunities for a better future.

As a close colleague and friend of Speaker Robert Rivas, Asm. Kalra was proud to see him receive the President's Medal for his leadership in the California State Assembly and his tireless advocacy for farmworkers, environmental sustainability, and economic equity. Raised in farmworker housing, Speaker Rivas' work reflects his deep commitment to uplifting underserved communities.

Janine Pelosi, CEO of Neat and former Chief Marketing Officer at Zoom, was named Alumna of the Year. Her instrumental role in Zoom's rapid expansion and her innovative leadership in the technology sector have made her a standout figure among SJSU alumni.

The evening held a special surprise as Asm. Kalra announced that SJSU President Cynthia Teniente-Matson will be honored as the 2025 Woman of the Year, a recognition that was met with enthusiasm from attendees. This announcement underscored President Teniente-Matson's impactful leadership and dedication to higher education and student success.

Asm. Kalra Celebrates Leadership at APALI's Spring Mixer

On March 1, Asm. Ash Kalra attended the Asian Pacific American Leadership Institute's (APALI) Spring Mixer and Graduation event, a vibrant evening that honored a new class of emerging civic leaders and celebrated the power of community engagement in the heart of Silicon Valley.

Held in San José, the event brought together alumni, community partners, and civic-minded individuals who share a commitment to advancing equity and representation. APALI, known for its mission to empower Asian American and Pacific Islander (AAPI) leaders, recognized the accomplishments of its latest program graduates during the ceremony.

"It's always inspiring to witness the passion and dedication of APALI's graduates," said Asm. Kalra. "They are stepping forward as changemakers in our community—ready to lead, advocate, and uplift others."

This year's event held special meaning for our office as one of our interns, Selbi Ernepesova, was among the graduates.

"To see someone from my own team, like Selbi, complete this transformative leadership journey—it's a proud moment," Kalra said. "Her growth and commitment to public service embody everything APALI stands for."

As a longtime supporter of APALI's mission, Asm. Kalra has often highlighted the importance of developing local leaders who reflect the diverse communities they serve.

"APALI plays a vital role in shaping a more inclusive future for California," he added. "Their work ensures that leadership is accessible and representative of the communities that make our state so vibrant."

The evening concluded with heartfelt reflections from alumni, inspiring remarks from community leaders, and a strong sense of momentum for the work still ahead.

Oak Grove Viet. Student Union Celebrates Its 15th Annual Culture Show

It was a special moment for both the Vietnamese Student Union members at Oak Grove High School in our district, who together hosted a successful annual cultural show, and Asm. Ash Kalra, who sponsored the club's annual event and recognized its continued advocacy for the understanding of Vietnamese heritage beyond the campus and academic realms.

On March 22, Asm. Kalra proudly revisited his alma mater and kicked off the show with his acknowledgment of the club's co-presidents, advisors, members, and community partners who have been collectively organizing this year's cultural show. This year's theme was Wonder Beyond the Waves, a deserving tribute to the strength and resilience of the Vietnamese student community at Oak Grove High School and in our district. Their families came to this country, overcoming many hardships to make ends meet for them to achieve academic and social successes.

"I'm honored to be invited by the Vietnamese Student Union at my alma mater to their 15th annual show," Kalra shared. "This year also marks the 50th anniversary of the journey of Vietnamese refugees seeking freedom in foreign lands after the 1975 Black April tragedy. The club's advocacy reflects a meaningful tribute to the contributions of the Vietnamese community to the great history of our city and state."

Hola Mohalla Continues to Rally the AD25 Community Spirit

Towards the end of March, the spring season kicks off in our district and for many members of the AD25 community; it's the time of year to participate in the festive Hola Mohalla hosted at the Sikh Gurdwara in San José. Hola Mohalla is an annual community gathering in celebration of sportsmanship, positive energy, and unity. The event has grown over the years to become a beloved tradition, drawing together people from diverse backgrounds to celebrate the spirit of togetherness. This year's festivities were once again filled with excitement, as participants engaged in various activities such as traditional music, cultural performances, delightful selections of food, and amazing local vendors. The atmosphere was electric with joy, unity, and a deep sense of pride in the community's shared values.

Asm. Ash Kalra was honored to attend the celebration once again, joining hundreds of community members in celebrating this auspicious occasion. He emphasized the importance of supporting cultural celebrations that bring people together. Asm. Kalra shared, "The continuity of Hola Mohalla represents the collective effort to foster unity and inclusivity across our district, and I always look forward to joining the Sikh Gurdwara San José as they continue to bring the community together"

Make a Friend for Life at San José Animal Care Center!

Thinking about adding a dog to your life? Dunkaroo is waiting—ready to bring boundless love and fun to a home that's ready for him.

Dunkaroo, a playful and loving black and tan Staffordshire Bull Terrier and Alaskan Husky mix, has been at the San José Animal Care Center since February 4, 2025. This 1.5-year-old neutered male is bursting with energy and affection.

Great with kids and other dogs, Dunkaroo is house-trained and has done well with fosters and in training sessions. He's had multiple temporary homes due to changing circumstances—not his behavior—so he's ready for a stable, active home where he can thrive.

His enthusiasm can lead to mouthy play, so ongoing training is important. With structure, exercise, and love, Dunkaroo will make a loyal, joyful companion.

Adoptions and fosters happen in person at 2750 Monterey Road in San José. Hours: Noon–4 p.m. Monday, 10 a.m.–5:30 p.m. Tuesday–Friday, and 10 a.m.–4:30 p.m. weekends. First-come, first-served. Fees include neuter, vaccines, microchip, and a one-year license.
